

lidars and moonlight

Just looking at the live view tonight, with an almost full moon, I can barely see a glimmer that might be the lidars in the bottom, left of the image. I'm assuming that the (visible) moonlight shifts the camera sensitivity so that it is less sensitive to the (infrared) lidar reflection off the surface.